Faculty Extra Duty Compensation Policy

Policy Manager: University HR Services

POLICY STATEMENT

Extra duty for faculty is defined as additional faculty responsibilities assigned for a temporary period of time, not to exceed one year. The assignment of extra duties may be within the home department and should be at the request of the Department Chair based upon departmental needs. When extra duty is performed outside of the home department or home college, the request should be initiated by the unit head of the extra duty department receiving the services.

Extra duty compensation may be paid when all four of the following conditions exists:

- The work is carried out in addition to a normal full load;
- No qualified person is available to carry the work as part of his/her normal load;
- The work produces sufficient income to be self-supporting (when educational activity's income exceeds itemized expenses, the excess funds may be distributed to program faculty as "Extra Compensation"); and
- The additional duties are not so heavy as to interfere with the performance of regular duties.

The extra compensation shall be paid in line with compensation paid for performance of the faculty member's normal duties. The extra compensation may be paid at the discretion of the Chair in one lump sum following the extra duty service, or paid in monthly increments during the extra duty service. The pay increase will be paid out of the extra duty departmental budget, unless other arrangements have been made and approved by the college's business office prior to the Faculty Action and Approval Process.

Nothing in this policy shall in any way conflict with or override any policy of any applicable faculty practice plan of any college within Augusta University.

To establish policy and procedures for faculty employed by Augusta University to receive extra compensation for extra duty services within or outside the home department or division according to Board of Regents (BOR) policy 8.3.12.4.
