Augusta University
Counselor Education Program

Information for Prospective Student (M.Ed.)

The Counselor Education Master of Education (M.Ed.) degree graduate program at Augusta University prepares students for professional careers as either school counselors or counselors in community mental health or private practice settings. Both the School Counseling and Clinical Mental Health Counseling concentration areas are accredited by the Council for the Accreditation of Counseling and Related Educational Programs (CACREP). Early in the program students are assisted, as needed, in determining which specialty area will most adequately match with their career goals. Most courses require outside field experiences, coordinated by the faculty, to help students gain a sense of both professions early in their professional training. Although the student body is already quite varied, we are committed to increasing the numbers of diverse students in our program to be more representative of the surrounding community.

The Counselor Education Program is designed to meet the needs of both traditional and non-traditional students. Courses are generally offered during evening hours or on Saturdays to accommodate those who may already be working in professional career areas. It is not required that applicants have a teaching certificate or work experience for acceptance into the Master’s program. Those individuals with at least some work experience will be considered more highly. Both the School Counseling and the Clinical Mental Health Counseling concentrations also require intensive practicum and internship experiences near the end of the course of study. For future school counselors, the practicum and internship placements are completed in school settings at the elementary or secondary levels. For those specializing in Clinical Mental Health Counseling, internships are held at local hospitals, mental health centers, and other community agencies.

All of the full-time Counselor Education Program faculty hold doctoral degrees and have professional experience in their particular subject areas. Several hold professional licensure (LPC) and certifications from the National Board of Certified Counselors. They are also actively involved in the counseling profession, members or officers in the American Counseling Association (ACA), the Association for Counselor Education and Supervision (ACES), Georgia School Counselor Association (GSCA), South Carolina School Counselor Association (SCSCA), Licensed Professional Counselors of Georgia (LPCG), South Carolina Counseling Association (SCCA) and other state and regional organizations. Faculty members frequently present at regional and national conferences, quite often in collaboration with counseling students, reporting on descriptive or experimental research which has been conducted during the program courses.

Admissions Procedures and Requirements

The Counselor Education Program faculty seeks to admit only those individuals who are personally and academically prepared to successfully complete the Master’s degree in clinical mental health or school counseling. Faculty members recognize the need for counselors to be sensitive and competent in working with diverse populations. In order to meet this need, they support multicultural perspectives throughout educational programs and actively seek a diverse student and faculty population. Additionally, faculty are committed to admitting students who demonstrate an awareness of self and willingness to work with others regardless of race, religion/spirituality, ethnicity, age, disability, sexual orientation, gender, gender identity, marital status/partnership, socioeconomic status, or other forms of diversity. Only those students who have completed the admissions process and have been fully accepted into the program may take counseling courses. Exceptions may be given on a case by case basis to those with previous graduate experience.

Admission to the program is competitive and based on several criteria. For all counseling programs, the student should exhibit those personal qualities or characteristics which, in the judgment of the faculty, are necessary for effective functioning in the role of a counselor. Applicants may obtain an application packet and more detailed admissions criteria from the Dean’s office in the College of Education or refer to the Counselor Education Program website for forms and information.

Revised 9.18.18
3. GACE Score (Program Admission assessment—formerly Basic Skills Assessment)
   *This requirement is for entry into the School Counseling M.Ed. program only. An SAT score of 1000, an ACT score of 43, or GRE score of 297 (Combined) will exempt a candidate from this admissions requirement. More information, including exam registration, can be found at www.gace.ets.org.

4. Three Recommendation Forms
   Applicants will include at least three professional recommendations. It is preferable for these letters of recommendation to be submitted by current or former supervisors, employers, or faculty members.

5. Personal Autobiographical Essay
   Applicants will write an autobiographical essay in which they discuss their reasons for wanting to become a counselor, what attributes they may possess which would contribute to their effectiveness as a counselor, what personal characteristics they possess that might hinder their relationships with clients, and how they are planning to address those issues. The essay must be double-spaced and three pages in length.

6. Personal Interview
   The personal interview with the Admissions Committee is the final requirement for admission into the program. The Admissions Committee is composed of counseling faculty. Applicants who are selected by faculty based on the quality of the previous criteria will be invited to the interview. The interview is designed to assess applicants’ potential for forming effective interpersonal relationships in individual and group contexts; openness to self-examination and personal and professional growth; potential to develop knowledge, skills and dispositions in the field; potential to work effectively with diverse populations; emotional stability; receptiveness to supervision; degree to which the Program’s objectives and mission are consistent with the vocational and professional goals of applicants; and the degree to which applicants display the potential for success in the counseling profession. After the interview applicants are evaluated by the faculty with a rubric which considers all of these factors, including both academic and non-academic issues.

   IMPORTANT NOTE – The Counselor Education faculty views each applicant individually, and considers the individual as a ‘whole’ that includes test scores, personal interview, essay, and recommendations. Please do not let any one piece of your application ‘package’ deter you from applying – counselors are multifaceted professionals with many skills and gifts.
Applicants who gain admission are those who, based on academic and non-academic factors, all of the information given and the course of the interview, best match the characteristics described in the above paragraph, and on the number of available openings for the upcoming semester.

The Admissions Committee makes its recommendations to the Dean of the College of Education. The Dean’s office sends each applicant a formal letter regarding the status of the application, usually within one to two weeks after the interview.

Program Eligibility and Systematic Assessment of Students

Students are expected to maintain an overall grade point average (GPA) of at least 3.0 across all courses attempted in the M.Ed. program. Any course in which a student earns a grade of D or F will need to be retaken. Also, the student may be placed on a remediation plan or may be dismissed from the program due to earning a grade of D or F. Student progress throughout the program is regularly monitored and assessed by program faculty. Students showing deficiencies in either academic or non-academic areas may be placed on probation and/or remediation status and may be either reinstated or dismissed based on subsequent academic or non-academic performance.
