

THANK YOU TO OUR GENEROUS DONORS

The Otolaryngology department has been overwhelmed by the generosity of several individuals this year. From alumni of the residency program, the Medical College of Georgia, and community members, the program has received outstanding support which will contribute to the ongoing research and educational mission of the department.

Dr. James Bush' contribution, in honor of his late friend and fellow Medical College of Georgia alumni has tremendously helped kick off a departmental resident simulation project.

Dr. Tom Cawthon's (Medical College of Georgia Alumni) donation of surgical instruments were a welcomed addition to the temporal bone lab. This gift will continue to serve residents for years to come as they learn and hone their surgical skills.

Dr. Fred Klippert (former MCG faculty) has been a supporter of the department for years and continues to do so with a thoughtful donation of books. The books will join a vast selection in the Porubsky library, an invaluable resource to our department.

The department would like to recognize the below individuals for their generous support of our Porubsky Resident Education Fund during fiscal year 2021.
